

Are you a doctoral extern looking for both therapy and testing experience?

We offer paid externships to doctoral students with at least one year of supervised clinical experience (e.g., at their University's clinic).

An extern's responsibilities will include individual and group therapy and testing. You'll have opportunities to co-lead and build your own independent caseload for therapy. You'll also learn to put together testing batteries, administer, score, and interpret a variety of measures, and write reports for your own testing clients.

PTC serves individuals age 3+ so you'll have opportunities to work with both children and adults in therapy and testing. Many of our externs also enjoy providing family, couples, and parenting support.

We are a neurodiversity affirming practice. We work with many neurodivergent, LGBTQ+, and culturally diverse clients. Our approaches are supportive, client centered, and strengths based, not compliance based. We center the social model of disability. To learn more about neurodiversity affirming care, listen to our Psychology Supervisor, Dr. Jaclyn Halpern here or here, or to both PTC Supervisors, Dr. Jaclyn Halpern and Laura Morlok, LPC, LPC, RPT-S in this presentation.
